The room was crowded with interested lsteners. Fourteen states were represented by the members of the association present. Miss Anthony introduced the speakers, Virginia L. Minor and Elizabeth Avery: Meriweather, of Missouri; Mary F. Eastman, of Massachusetts. Julia B. Nelson, of Tennessee; Mrs. James Bennett, of Kentucky; Helen M. Gougar and May Wright Sewell, of Indiana; Clara B, Colby, of Nebraska, and Mmc. Clara Newman, of New York. These ladies presented an appeal for the submission of a sixteenth amendment to the state legislatures. The committee seemed exceedingly interested and gave the ladies a very respectful hearing. Miss Anthony presented the committee with a copy of the "Woman's Suffrage History" from its inception up to the present time, and told them she would continue to make history out of Their actions on the woman suffrage question until the sixteenth amendment is passed. Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, chairman of the committee asked if "she would record for posterity every bile word we say," and Miss Anthony assured him she should do so. see It expounded in the most explicit manne by one of our so-called LARGE CONCERNS They are the most wonderful beings that at tempt to advertise. day afternoon at a large meeting at Foundry Church by Hon. Nelson Dingley, of Maine; Mrs. Mary H. Lunt, of Hoston. Mr. Dingley showed the importance of starting right in life, and hence of teaching children correct views as to the nature and effects of alcohol.

Mrs. Lathrop demonstrated the propriety of Congress requiring such instruction in the public schools of the territories, the District of Columbia, the Indian and colored schools, as the bill now before that body provides: "for," said she, "the territories are but states in their minority and they should have proper training before they reach their majority and ask for admission into the Union as separate states." She also showed the responsibility which rests on the United States toward the Indians, the colored race, and the foreign population to see that the danger signal in regard to the use of alcoholic drinks is kept before their children.

Mrs. Hunt followed in a few remarks, and then asked the audience to give a rising vote as to their wishes for Congress to pass a law for the instruction of the children of this District on the nature and effects of alcohol. 1 lot of Smyrna Mats, better still, 93c; we old at $1.24.
